

Friday, January 6 is the feast of the Three Kings, Epiphany. The Kings, Magi, were men of some resources (see their presents!) who watched the stars and knew that something pretty special had happened. Tradition says they were priests from Persia and wise men. Tradition also says there were three, which is mainly based on the three gifts, but we don't know for sure.

The story of the Magi is special because they are the first ones who are described explicitly as worshipping Jesus. We, as worshippers, can learn some things from them.

1. They made an effort.

Travelling many hundred miles to worship this new king was a bit of a hassle for them. They must have had other things to do! But they let the Son of God interrupt their lives and call them to worship. How good are you at allowing God to interrupt your life and call you to worship each week?

2. They came prepared.

They came with gifts. They thought through what they were going to give when they got there. There was meaning for them in their worship gifts. What meaningful worshipping gifts do you bring on the Sabbath?

3. They were full of joy.

The chance to meet with this newborn Christ really made their day. They had arrived and now was the moment. They were overjoyed. How much joy do you experience when you worship?

4. They saw the child.

They could have left their presents at the door, but what they most wanted was to see the child. Worship would be easy if we could just turn up, do our bit, sing a song or two and go home. But true worship is an encounter with God. In true worship, we see Jesus.

5. They bowed down and worshipped.

They knew what to do in the presence of a king. Had they planned to bow, or could they simply do nothing else when they saw him. When we encounter God, like the magi, do we bow down because he is God. Face to face with God means on our face.

6. They opened their treasures.

When we come to worship God, do we bring our treasures, those things most precious to us, (money, time, talents, reputations, friendships, etc.) and lay them before him?

The Bible says that where your treasure is, that's where your heart is. Those who bring their treasures are those who have given God their hearts.

Be a gift!
